

Dear Member,

Each year, Evergreen Safety Council recognizes one or more member organizations for their performance in safety with the prestigious John D. Spellman Safety Award. This award is designed to recognize members' efforts to promote a positive safety culture within their respective organizations. The award is presented to an organization that has demonstrated a focus on safety awareness through management supported activities, the implementation of a new safety program, or the improvement of an existing program.

Created in 2006 to inspire interest in promoting safety in the workplace and accident prevention, the award is named after John D. Spellman, ESC's current Board Chairman and former Washington State Governor.

Currently, there are 255 organizations that qualify for a nomination. This year's winner(s) will be honored on March 28, 2012 at ESC's Annual Membership Meeting, which will also mark our 80th anniversary. Local media will be notified of the organization's accomplishment.

We congratulate last year's winner, IMCO Construction. IMCO was selected based on achieving zero time loss over the last 5 years, minimal recordables, and continually reducing their Experience Mod Rate over the past 5 years. They achieved .04370 in 2010, which is simply outstanding work!

Applying for this award also provides your organization a great opportunity to evaluate your current situation, determine benchmarks for your safety procedures, and set goals beyond 2012.

We invite you to promote your achievements and celebrate your organization's safety accomplishments with Evergreen Safety Council. The safety awards program is our way of rewarding you for the success of your safety and health program. We look forward to receiving your application!

Sincerely,
